TROOPS FIRE ON HAYTIAN RIOTERS AND KILL 12 MEN

Port Au Prince in Terror During Night of Pillage After Nord Alexis Is Driven Out.

HOMES OF RICH LOOTED

Mob Rapidly Gaining Control of City When Checked—Five Warships Watch.

PORT AU PRINCE, Dec. 3.—The stirring events of an exciting and hysterical day that saw President Nord Alexis driven from his capital, with an infuriated mob at his heels, were followed by a night of looting and pillage in Port au Prince.

The passions of the populace had been aroused, and after being defeated in their endeavors to do bodily harm to Nord Alexis, they turned their attention to well stocked store-houses and the residences of the supporters of their late President. They were rapidly getting out of hand when the authorities succeeded in controlling the situation.

Twelve men were killed before order was restored. The trouble began shortly after the President had been escorted to the French cruiser Duguay Trouin by M. Carteron, the French Minister.

People from the Belair and Salines sections of the city invaded the business quarter and lost no time in turning to the work of pillage and robbery. They divided into bands and worked their way down one street and up another, breaking into the stores that offered the best chance of loot.

Bullet Smashed Locks.
The locks of doors that barred their progress were blown out with rifle bullets. The pillage was well under way by 8 o'clock, and by 10 o'clock eleven stores had been completely looted. Some of the establishments belong to Syrians, while Haytians were the owners of the other two stores. The proprietors stood by and helplessly witnessed the destruction of their property.

Goods were hauled out into the street and divided among the mob. As was to be expected, the crowd became enraged over the division of the spoils and were soon fighting among themselves. In these encounters four men were killed. At 10 o'clock the situation was very threatening. The looters were increasing rapidly in numbers, and it was feared that the disorder would spread over the entire city. The people were rapidly getting out of hand, when Gen. Faidin appeared on the scene and saved the situation. He went first to the police headquarters and ordered a detachment of men to follow him to the scene of the trouble.

Troops Lead Attack.
The police, however, refused. The General then got together a number of courageous citizens, to whom he issued arms, and rounded up also a small detachment of loyal soldiers, and at the head of this body of men he marched on the looters.

The pillagers were unaware of his approach, and the first intimation that they were to meet any opposition came to them in the shape of a volley from Gen. Faidin's command. Eight of the looters fell at this first fire. This onslaught broke the spirit of the mob, and as the General threatened to fire again the crowd quickly dispersed to safe quarters.

While this was going on in the business district another mob was taking advantage of its opportunities to loot the rich residential section of the city. The residences of Gen. Colcon, Gen. Gabriel, Gen. Guillaume, M. Lefontant, Gen. Marcelin and Gen. Leconte were broken into by bands of pillagers and completely looted. This success seemed to satisfy the crowd in the suburbs, for they then dispersed without committing any further depredations.

Menace the Priests.
At 11 o'clock the seminary of the priests was surrounded by a menacing crowd demanding that Gen. Colcon be turned over to them. The priests made reply that the General was not there. Word was quickly sent to Gen. Faidin of the threatening situation at the seminary. He hurried forward at the

JUDGES SCORED BY RABBI AGAIN PAY HONOR TO CROKER

Justices Platzek, Dugro, Foster, Guy and Erlanger Attend the Reception This Afternoon at the Democratic Club.

Of the seven Justices who were criticized by Rabbi Stephen J. Wise for their participation in the banquet to Richard Croker, five were in attendance at a reception to the retired "boss" at the Democratic Club this afternoon.

The five were Justices M. Warley Platzek, P. Henry Dugro, Charles E. Guy and Mitchell L. Erlanger, of the Supreme Court, and Justice Warren W. Foster, of the Court of General Sessions. In addition to these there was Justice Leonard Gleicher, of the Supreme Court; Dr. John T. Nagle, Justice David Wild, John B. Hasselbacher, Justice Thomas F. Donnelly, of the City Court, ex-Commissioner Eugene Bush, and Michael T. Daly, Justice Leo Prince, M. L. Abraham, Leader William Dalton, A. Stern and Assistant Corporation Counsel Solon Derrick, together with 2,000 more.

In the crush were 2,000 women, with whom Croker exchanged a word as each passed him in the great hallway, the reception being too crowded to receive them there.

The Rev. David A. Jordan, pastor of the Timothy Methodist Episcopal Church, proved himself a fireman of rare skill to-day when he ran two blocks, halted the fire-fighters of Engine No. 3, raced back ahead of the fire apparatus, and then so ably directed the work of extinguishing a fire in his home that little damage resulted.

Mr. Jordan's handsome three-story home adjoins the church, at No. 317 East One Hundred and Eighteenth street. He was the first to enter the house when he returned from the engine house. Five firemen with axes and hoses followed him. He then directed them to the basement where the fire originated. It was not possible to drag the hose down the stairway and a hole had to be cut through the floor. The minister then rushed up stairs and found that the flames had reached his studio.

From the bathroom he carried pails of water through the smoke-filled hallway, and by the time the firemen were able to reach the second floor the library fire was well under control. The damage amounted to $500. A crowd surrounded the young minister after the engines departed. His clothes were covered with dirt and several inches from his trousers were burned in stamping out the library blaze. His face was begrimed with water and dirt. He was roundly cheered for his display of nerve.

The Bowery was stirred up late this afternoon when Acting Police Captain Joseph O'Connor was trying to serve the riotous owners, but when his men fell upon Mike Lyons's old place, at No. 261, everybody around knew they meant business.

It reminded one of the old days on the Bowery, as first it was thought Acting Captain O'Connor was trying to serve the riotous owners, but when his men fell upon Mike Lyons's old place, at No. 261, everybody around knew they meant business.

There was the greatest kind of excitement and confusion. Word was passed quickly in all the sections and other places where the oldtimers congregated. The Bowery had again reverted to its old ways; the police were "wise," and what's more, on to their jobs.

From No. 261 O'Connor and his men went to No. 258, which has been known as "The Illusion Palace." A quantity of stuff was gathered in here as well as at the first place raided and piled into one of the patrol wagons.

After they had completed their work at No. 258 the detectives went to No. 273. They worked so quickly that the side show and moving picture people couldn't get their outfits out of the way before the raiders were upon them.

A number of arrests were made. O'Connor, who ranks as a lieutenant, was transferred to the Eldridge street station two days ago from the Elizabeth street station.

ACTOR FLETCHER CO-RESPONDENT IN DIVORCE CASE

Well-Known Theatrical Men Called as Witnesses by Richard MacMullen.

SAW PAIR ON LINER.

Wife Left Home to Tour in Vaudeville With Man Named by the Husband.

Charles Leonard Fletcher, stage impersonator and well known to the music hall patrons of this country and Europe, was named as a correspondent in a suit for absolute divorce brought by Richard MacMullen against his young wife, Lucia, to-day in the Supreme Court.

The grieving husband has brought well-known stage favorites into the case as his witnesses.

Mrs. MacMullen, who is only twenty-three years old, is described as prepossessing, with large baby blue eyes and a mass of brown hair. The couple were married six years ago, and have one child, Dorothy, four years old.

The husband hopes to secure a divorce through testimony regarding Mrs. MacMullen's conduct aboard the steamship "Philadelphia," of the American line, on the trip from Southampton to this city ending Aug. 23 of this year. It is alleged that Fletcher introduced her as his wife, and certain occurrences in their stateroom are to be brought forward.

Calton Macy and William Gould, well known in vaudeville, have signed affidavits for the husband's side of the case swearing that Fletcher posed as Mrs. MacMullen's husband. Other theatrical men's names mentioned in the affidavit copy of complaint filed to-day are Paul D. Marks, William Faverham, Stuart Barnes and Marcus Mayer, all of whom, the husband alleges, were introduced to the woman by Fletcher as his wife.

MacMullen narrates that his wife was a chorus girl in the Castle Square Opera Company. She was stage struck and one day told her husband that she had a splendid offer to act in the sketch of which Fletcher was the star.

Wife Goes to Europe.
MacMullen, who is a sales manager employed by the White Steamer Automobile Company, on upper Broadway, at first objected, he asserts, saying that she should not leave her home and child for the vaudeville stage. Finally he consented, and she joined Fletcher in his act. She went to London and Paris and over the Keith circuit in this country.

It was not long, according to the husband's affidavit, before friends came to him with information that Fletcher and his wife were touring the country as Mr. and Mrs. Fletcher. He begged her to return to him, and after waiting until his patience became exhausted turned the matter over to his lawyer, Charles Doan Russell, at No. 14 Nassau street.

MacMullen alleges that Fletcher has a wife and two children living in Rhode Island. The suit commenced to-day is for an absolute divorce and counsel fees and also the custody of the child.

MacMullen is ten years his wife's senior.

SENATOR COLBY, OF JERSEY, NOT TO BE A NEW YORKER.
Former Sheriff Sommers, law partner of Senator Everett Colby of Essex County, New Jersey, said to-day in Newark that there was nothing in the rumor that Mr. Colby was to make New York City his permanent place of residence. He said that for many years Mr. and Mrs. Colby had spent the winter in this city, where Mrs. Colby's relatives reside, and that they had gone there as usual this winter. Mr. Sommers added that he certainly would know about it if Mr. Colby had any intention of remaining permanently in New York.

Senator Colby resides in West Orange. A member of his household said that it was true that Mr. and Mrs. Colby were going to spend some time in New York and that Mrs. Colby had gone there last Tuesday. That they intended to return here, however, it was stated, was shown by the fact that the house here was to be kept open. Mr. Colby, who is the leader of the New Idea faction of the Republican party, was defeated for re-election last month.

83'S NO. 5 IS 18.
SERGEANT K. J. Dec. 3.—On Millstone Creek, a few miles above here, yesterday, a fine heavy shagreen, also carrying three, was hauled to Mrs. Maria Meade, eighteen, after an acquaintance of only a few days. The shagreen is alive for a run of his age. This is his fifth marriage. He is a wealthy pensioner.

Released From an Asylum, Ship Carpenter Attacks Wife in Home.
Edith Faurie Demands Damages From Harry Lazelle for Alleged Breach of Promise.

John Bush, a ship carpenter, who was discharged from the Kings Park Insane Asylum a week ago as cured and returned to his wife and ten-year-old boy, John, at No. 329 Dean street, Brooklyn, suffered a relapse of madness this morning and was with difficulty restrained from killing himself and family.

The carpenter got up at 6 o'clock and commanded his wife and boy to dress. Then he made a long, incoherent address, ending with the announcement: "I can't get work. People think I'm mad. I guess I am, so we had all better die." Then he drew a razor from his pocket and rushed upon his wife. She grappled with him and managed to grasp his wrist and prevent him from cutting her. She fought and struggled with all her strength and shrieked for assistance.

Just as she was losing her strength William Murphy, a neighbor, came to her assistance. The madman left his wife and rushed upon Murphy with uplifted razor. Murphy stunned him with a chair and tripped him, but the maniac was down only a minute, leaping up and rushing upon Murphy again like a wild animal. As Murphy dodged the razor policeman John Evers rushed in. The moment Bush saw the policeman he fled from the room to the rear of the flat. Evers pursued and got to the man just as he drew the razor across his throat. A blow from Evers's club struck the weapon from the madman's hand before he could inflict a serious wound. Then he was taken to the Grand avenue station and thence to the Flatbush court, where he was committed to the Kings County Hospital for observation.

Trainer Did Not Know He Had All That Money, and Archbold on the Stand Calls It a "Mere Matter of Bookkeeping."

TRUST WITNESS WARMLY DEFENDS REBATE SYSTEM.

Asked by Kellogg If It Is Not True That the Lima (Ohio) Investment Has Paid Fully One Thousand Per Cent. to Him and His Associates.

A mysterious "loan" of $22,000,000, which John D. Archbold was unable or unwilling to explain, formed the principal topic of interest at the afternoon session of the Government's suit against the Standard Oil in the Custom-House to-day.

Mr. Archbold explained that it was "merely a bookkeeping exchange." Lawyer Kellogg intimated that it was done to make it appear that the earnings of the Southern Pipe Line Company were smaller than they really were. He asked if this was not so, and the witness, after a brief period of deliberation, replied that he did not know.

Trust Buster Kellogg brought up the matter by remarking:

"In the accounts of the Southern Pipe Line Company there are various loans credited to one P. S. Trainer, amounting altogether to over $22,000,000. Mr. Trainer has already testified that he couldn't explain these loans to him. Can you?"

"These loans started in 1890. They ran from two millions per annum up, often being larger than the receipts of the company. They continue up to 1906. Do you know what became of that money, and why it was charged to Mr. Trainer?"

"I have not had to do personally with this 'line administration,'" replied Mr. Archbold. "I understand that these amounts were merely an adjustment between the company and the lines with which it was doing business. But I do not know the real reason for carrying the money. The transaction was done between companies having a common ownership."

PRETTY WOMAN SAVES MAN FROM DEATH ON LINER
Mrs. Angus Snatches Passenger Swept Toward Rail of Liner California.

The steamship California, of the Anchor Line, arrived in port this morning from Glasgow four days overdue, with a tale of the stormiest trip in the memory of Capt. Blaikie, who has sailed the seas many years.

The ship left Glasgow Nov. 21 and steamed into rough weather before she was 100 miles from the coast. From then on she had to make her way in a succession of squalls, wind, rain and snow storms and with a temperature that changed from heavy, humid murkiness to intense cold. So severe was the weather that a great part of the voyage was made at a rate of about ten knots an hour.

The California encountered the fiercest gale of the trip Sunday. It struck her with hurricane force and pounded her around in the towering seas as if she had been a cork. One immense sea lashed forward as if hurled from a catapult and smashed the iron bulwarks of the bridge on the upper deck.

This sizzling gale gave Mrs. William Angus, a very pretty young woman from Haverhill, Cal., a chance to prove herself a heroine. David Burn, a young man from Dundee, who is coming to America to make some investments and live, was in a steamer chair on the promenade deck trying to recover from a severe attack of seasickness when Mrs. Angus noticed he was chattering with the cold.

She wrapped her steamer rug around him, and just as he was well tucked in the ship gave a lurch, a sudden gust caught the pair, and Burn, and steamer chair overturned and rolled along the deck.

Tangled in the rug, the young man was flung violently against the rail, and just at that moment the California gave a roll that would have thrown him into the surging sea had not Mrs. Angus caught him. She clung to him with all her might and had to pull him across the deck, as he was helpless with a distorted shoulder. Mrs. Angus's steamer rug went flapping in the wind and the steamer chair was smashed to bits.
